Heard about the new Domestic Violence - Victims' Protection Bill?

Here's what it means for you.

Imagine trying to work while juggling court, counselling, and your family's needs following a domestic violence incident. This is the situation for thousands of Kiwis, but it's set to improve with the new Domestic Violence - Victims' Protection Bill coming into effect on 1 April. The law enables people affected by family violence to apply for specific leave and flexible working arrangements to help them keep their jobs during a challenging time.

What does this mean for you?

Local companies such as Countdown, The Warehouse and ANZ already offer domestic violence leave - and it's time for the rest of the country to follow suit. As an employer, you need to be aware of what leave and flexible working arrangements victims of domestic abuse are entitled to, what you have to do, and how to support your staff.

10 days' domestic violence leave

Employees will be able to apply for up to 10 days' domestic violence leave per year to deal with the effects of domestic violence, such as court appearances, doctor visits and looking after children.

- Employees need six months' continuous employment to be entitled to this leave and entitlement does not accrue from year to year.
- Staff don't need to provide proof they have been affected by domestic violence, but employers can ask for proof before agreeing to the request.
- If an employee fails, without reasonable excuse, to provide proof, their employer isn't required to pay for any domestic violence leave.

More flexibility at work

To support staff affected by family violence, you are required to provide flexible working conditions, such as changes to:

- The location of their workplace
- Their duties at work
- The extent of contact details the employee must provide to their employer
- Any other term of employment that needs variation to enable the employee to deal with the effects of domestic violence.

Stay open-minded and make a plan

Now's the time to think about how you'll approach requests for domestic violence leave. It's a good idea to put together a practical plan to ensure you respect and protect your staff members' privacy throughout the process. Keep in mind you could get requests for leave for a range of reasons including physical, sexual and psychological abuse, harassment, threats, intimidation and financial abuse. If you need help putting together a plan, please call us.

#FACT

New Zealand police respond to 270 domestic violence incidents every day and it's estimated that's only the tip of the iceberg - with 80% of incidents going unreported.

#FACT

Did you know domestic violence already costs New Zealand workplaces at least $368 million a year due to higher turnover and lost productivity? Addressing the problem directly will be better for business and victims of domestic abuse.

It's time to gear up for payday filing

Hundreds of Kiwi business owners are enjoying the benefits of payday filing - are you? If not, you'll need to be by 1 April when payday filing becomes compulsory. Now's the time to work out how you're going to integrate it into your payroll processes and save time on your tax obligations.

Payday filing means you need to:

- File employment information every payday instead of an Employer monthly schedule (IR348).
- Provide new and departing employees' address information, as well as their date of birth - if they have provided it to you.
- File electronically (from payday compatible software or through myIR) if your annual PAYE/ESCT is $50,000 or more.

Remember, the due date for payment remains the same at the 20th of the month (or 5th and 20th of the month for twice-monthly filers).

How do I payday file?

There are three ways to file electronically - direct from payroll software, file upload from myIR or onscreen via myIR.

How do I shift over to payday filing?

1. Review your payroll processes and plan and schedule when to shift.
2. Ask your software provider when they'll have payday filing compatible software (Xero and MYOB already do).
3. If you're using myIR to file, let the IRD know you're switching to payday filing in myIR.

Need to know how payday filing works for schedular payments, shadow payrolls, employee share schemes and holiday pays? Let us know and we'll talk you through it.

Payroll Pain Relievers

With New Zealand ranking as one of the most complex payroll environments in the world, it's no wonder many Kiwi employers choose to offload payroll headaches to bookkeepers, accountants, or payroll intermediaries. This trend is picking up steam: with Inland Revenue's "Payday Filing" scheme kicking off 1 April 2019, instead of reporting PAYE to Inland Revenue on the 20th of the following, you'll need to report every payday (though some employers may have different situations and can choose otherwise).*

The bad news? With anti-money laundering rules in effect, even getting someone else to do your payroll is about to get more complicated.

If we're handling your payments to staff or Inland Revenue, we might need to get more information about your business and identity.

If you've got someone else handling these payments, like a bookkeeper or a payroll service provider, they might need to do the same thing. If you can't get into the office to meet with them, this might include tasks like getting a copy of your driver's licence certified by a JP or lawyer. Good fun.

Now the good news! Certain PAYE Intermediaries, like PaySauce, are exempt from the AML obligations. They (and others like them) won't need to badger you for identity verification or more info about your business. PaySauce is also the first payroll intermediary up and running with Payday Filing. (Note that some intermediaries are not exempt - it's important to check).

If you'd like us (or whoever helps you with your payroll) to take care of payroll calculations so you don't need to spend time becoming a holiday pay guru, we could migrate you onto a platform like PaySauce for the best of both worlds - Payday Filing and AML payroll headaches sorted.

Hiring? Look for traits not talent

Soft skills are the personal qualities that make people easy to work with and they're key for business success. Here are six important soft skills and the best open-ended interview questions you can ask to help find out whether a candidate is right for your business.

Communication	Give me an example of when you had to deal with a difficult team member. What did you do to communicate properly?
Adaptability	Tell me about a time when you were asked to do something for the first time. How did you react? What did you learn?
Culture fit	What three things are most important to you in a job?
Collaboration	Tell me about a time when you had to work with someone who was difficult to get along with. How did you handle interactions with them?
Time management	Describe a time you fell behind schedule. What went wrong and what would you do differently next time?
